

I have been dreaming this a long time, imagined your face, your voice. Today you would come, I was so sure. You would stand on my doorstep, your smile would lighting up my face, you would look straight to my eyes. You would take a step towards me, you would wrap your arms around me, your lips would touch lightly on my forehead and I would feel warm breath in my hair. I wouldn't ask; Why you let me wait for you so long? Because I knew you would come. I would stay quiet and listen to beat of your heart. Today you would be a real.