

Don't throw rocks at my window just break it the binds that lock me away I lay claim to all things predictable Having thoughts so shameful, in madness shall we thrive Hunting down the devil, beating them down And even when the sanity will drift away, I drift away appears to be a bountiful opportunity to seek despair